

European Network of Gastrointestinal Pathology

www.medunigraz.at/engip

Dear Colleague,

we invite all pathologists with an interest in gastrointestinal pathology to join The European Network of Gastrointestinal Pathology (ENGIP).

ENGIP is a non-profit organization and works as a network for communication rather than a formal society. Hence, the purpose of ENGIP is to get a route for dissemination of relevant information such as guidelines, consensus documents, society information (particularly from the European Society of Pathology), courses, research collaborations, grants etc. for gastrointestinal pathology.

Among its members, ENGIP will regularly conduct web-based surveys on how gastrointestinal pathology is practiced. The results of these surveys are compiled and sent back to the network participants in order to give immediate feedback. Hopefully, the survey results may give a better picture of the current status of gastrointestinal pathology and it is our hope that this will make it easier to issue formal guidelines and also be a support for you in your daily practice.

To become a member you only need to be a practicing pathologist (M.D.). Please go to the ENGIP homepage which is available under the following address: www.medunigraz.at/ENGIP. In addition to several kinds of information including monthly teaching cases, you will find a letter of invitation which we kindly ask you to fill out and send back to the following e-mail address: engip@medunigraz.at.

We hope that you will find this service useful. If you have colleagues in your hospital or in other institutions who might be interested, do not hesitate to forward this information!

With kind regards,

Cord Langner, M.D.

Coordinator of ENGIP

Chairman, Working Group of Digestive Diseases, European Society of Pathology; Institute of Pathology, Medical University of Graz, Austria

Alessandro Lugli, M.D.

Coordinator of ENGIP

Institute of Pathology, University of Bern, Switzerland